THE GOMEL MASSACRE

Details of the Attack on Jews in Northwest Russia.

THEIR COURAGE WAS ASTONISHING

Even the Women Fought-Part of the Time the Jews Were Assaulted by Both Soldiers and Mob-Whole-sale Executions May Follow Resistance to the Soldiers.

The Jewish Morning Journal of New York recently printed the following letter about the Gomel massacre of Jews in northwest Russia from its special correspondent at Warsaw:

"It all began on Friday (Sept. 11) with a quarrel between a Jewish shopkeeper and a Christian woman who refused to pay for a herring. The attack on the Jews was renewed on Sept. 13. It soon transpired that the riot of Friday was only a kind of rehearsal for the real 'pogrom,' which took place on the 14th and 15th. Now, the streets of Gomel were drenched with blood, and the rioters this time were not peasants, but the strongly built little Russian railroad laborers, 500 in number. The Jews defended themselves as valiantly as on Friday, with whatever weapons they could get hold of. The police worked earnestly and diligently to quell the disorder, but were powerless against the savage mob. In ordinary times there are plenty of soldiers in Gomel, but at this time of the year they were still in their summer camps and could not reach the town the first day of the riot.

"The Jews telegraphed to the governor of Mohilev for assistance and received a reply that he was indisposed and could not start for Gomel on that day, but he requested the chief of police to aid the Jews. The chief carried out the order faithfully, and he himself shot to death two Russians, but he was powerless to restore order. Five Jews were killed the first day, and but for the gallant fight put up by the Jews the number of killed would be much larger. The strength and courage displayed by these people, who are generally taunted for cowardice, were something astonishing. Even women fought. The physical agility and the correctness of their aim were not at all those of a race of cringing peddlers.

"The riot became worse on the 15th, but the Jews still stood their ground. The governor arrived that day. The peasants from the surrounding country began to gather on receipt of the news that the Jews were being robbed at Gomel, and many came with the intention of revenging Friday's defeat. The Jews were prepared and had armed men stationed on all the roads leading into Gomel.

"The soldiers arrived in the forenoon, and their first act to restore order was an attempt to disperse the Jews. The latter replied that they could not trust their lives to the soldiers for fear of a repetition of the Kishineff atrocities. They insisted that the attacking rioters should be dispersed first. The soldiers insisted and fired on the Jews. The latter returned the fire, and they were soon attacked from both sides—that is, by the soldiers and by the rioters.

"In the meantime the news of the riot reached Minsk, and fifty well armed young Jews from that city hastened to the rescue of their distressed brethren in Gomel. But they were betrayed by an agent provocateur, or government spy, who was among them and were arrested on their arrival at the railroad depot of Gomel.

"The riot ended on the third day. Ten Jews and eight Christians were killed (the figures of the government Messenger are false), and the number of seriously wounded is very large. Among the dead is also young Kohnovsk, aged twenty-two, who enjoyed an excellent reputation.

"The city is practically destroyed. Houses are demolished and shops emptied of all their contents. Several synagogues were destroyed, and the town looks as if a great conflagration had taken place there.

"But there is something worse in store for the Jews of Gomel. The city was even before the outbreak under a mild form of martial law, owing to the labor troubles which took place there recently, and the Jews who resisted the soldiers were told that they would be tried before a military court, which means that they may be sentenced to death."

McGraw is Satisfied. Manager McGraw, New York National, says he will retain the entire team for next season. He will also keep his eye open for a couple more first class players, and the team will have at least two months in the south next spring before the championship season starts.

Quaker Football. The old Pennsylvania players who thought they were to have a cinch in making the Quakers' team this fall are being severely shaken up by Coach Carl Williams. There may be some shake-ups coming out at Harvard, too, before long.
